

Election campaign enters final week

As the municipal election campaign entered its final week candidates throughout the county are making their final appeals to voters.

In most cases the campaigns have been quiet with little in the way of controversy. It has been only at all candidates meetings, attended by just a small percentage of the electorate, that the hopefuls have been challenged on various issues. Even then, most of the questions were directed at incumbents who were called upon to defend their record.

In an effort to clarify the position of candidates in the municipality of Anson, Hindon and Minden, The Times attempted to contact all those seeking office in this area to give them an opportunity to present their platforms once more before voting day. (Unfortunately council candidate Dean Elliott has been away hunting this week and we were unable to contact him).

Two candidates are vying for the position of reeve in the township.

Sinc Nesbitt

Nesbitt is the incumbent candidate having just completed his first term as reeve in this township. He has also served as reeve in Stanhope Township.

Nesbitt points to the progress made during the past two years as examples of the growth which has taken place in the municipality. He also points out that municipal taxes in the township have not increased in the past two years.

The reeve points to the new curling rink and library-cultural centre as examples of the growth taking place. "Things are starting to gell," he commented. He said there has been more growth in the township in the past two years than in a long period prior to 1978.

Nesbitt is confident that DREE funding will be made available to the area in the next year and that this will provide a major boost to the economy. In conjunction with this possibility, the candidate points out the township council has been considering the rezoning of appropriate land for industrial purposes. The exact location of the land in question was not revealed by the reeve, however, from comments made at the candidates meeting, it is presumed the land is on the Bobcaygeon Road north of Minden. He said the township has taken out an option on the land in question.

He said the council should encourage the completion of plans for a recreational park on the land behind the new library. He predicted once the park is completed, the area will become a real asset to the community.

Nesbitt also predicted positive results from the white water park at Horseshoe Lake. He said the municipality should consider improving the area along the shore to make the park that much more attractive to white water enthusiasts.

Roads major concern at Snowdon meeting

Various aspects of road construction, repair and maintenance dominated the meet the candidates night in Snowdon Township. The meeting, held in the township hall, drew a crowd of close to 65 residents and interested citizens, many of whom were forced to stand at the back of the room for lack of seats.

The gathering followed the usual format, with candidates offering brief opening statements and then responding to questions from the audience.

One of the most pressing concerns of the ratepayers, particularly those from the southern end of the township, was the condition of the Irondale Road. This road connects Highway 519 at Gelert and Highway 503. According to one questioner the road is in terrible condition and is needed by the residents of the south end because it reduces the distance to Minden.

Deputy Reeve John Francis told the meeting the council had yet to consider whether the road would be maintained during the coming winter. He pointed out however that the road is a difficult one to plough because of the many sharp turns and uneven road surface. He said there was no money left in this year's budget to straighten out the road.

Candidate for reeve, Don Smedmor said the Irondale Road should be made passable. He said the township should have spent money on improving the condition of the road, but that this year's budget was spent on improvements to the Peacock Bridge.

Deputy Reeve candidate Ray Cox commented that the township should prepare a program to improve the condition of the road.

The reference to the bridge expenditure brought to light the fact that repairs to the Peacock or Irondale bridge had taken a large chunk out of the roads budget this past year and that the project had been more expensive than originally planned.

According to the clerk of the township, the council had intended to spend approximately $75,000 on the project. However, the tender which was accepted, quoted a price of $81,000, with an additional $7500 for engineering services. A number of extras were added to the project before it was completed and the total price was nearly $20,000 over what the council had originally budgeted for.

The members of the present council said it had been necessary to draw on a $7000 reserve fund to help cover the cost of the bridge project and that a portion of the costs could be transferred to next year's budget to benefit from a supplementary grant from the Ministry of Transportation and Communications.

Several questioners suggested that the $7000 reserve fund had been established to assist in the purchase of equipment for the township. Reeve Robert Vick said the money had just been accumulated for current road expenditure.

Clerk-treasurer Geoffrey Wynne told the meeting that the township budget would probably be in a deficit position by the end of the year as a result of the extra expense on the bridge. He said this year's total road budget amounted to $125,000, including the bridge.

Roads department

A number of other questions were asked concerning the operation of the road department. Deputy Reeve John Francis told the meeting that as head of the road committee he had been told by the council on a number of occasions not become involved in the day to day operation of the department. Francis claimed the township's road superintendent was told not to carry out work on the lower Dutch Line Road, but that $4500 was spent on the road anyway.

"Does one man rule that department?" a questioner asked the Deputy Reeve.

"It seems that way," Francis responded.

In his opening remarks Francis commented that he had had to "step on some toes" during his two year term as deputy reeve, and he would continue to do so if necessary.

Highway 519

Reeve Robert Vick was asked if Highway 519 was about to be designated a county road. He responded by saying the road should be maintained as a provincial highway from Highway 121 to Haliburton. He said there were advantages to the township in having the road marked on provincial road maps, that four or five jobs could be lost if the MTC withdrew from the area and that the MTC now provides 24 hour service in the winter on the highway while the county winter maintenance covers only an eight or nine hour period.

Vick said he had heard that Muskoka would not agree to the swap needed for the exchange of county roads and highways in the two area, "...and I hope they won't", he told the meeting.

Reeve candidate Don Smedmor agreed with these remarks. He said turning the road into a county artery

Advance polls tally

Attendance at advance polls across the county appears to have been down this year compared to voting for the 1978 municipal elections.

Most municipalities in the Haliburton area held advance polls this past Saturday giving voters who reside outside of the township, or who will be away from home November 10, an opportunity to cast their ballots. The advance polls are traditionally used by cottage owners most of whom were unable to visit the polling stations on election Monday.

The following totals have been gathered from advance polls throughout the county. The figures in the brackets indicate the totals from previous years:

Anson, Hindon and Minden: 109 (178). A second advance poll is scheduled for this Saturday at the firehall. Lutterworth: 127 (377). Stanhope: 87 (approx. 195).

Dysart et al: 192 (215). Snowdon: 51 (118). Glamorgan: 210 (38). Monmouth: 47 (approx. the same).

Cardiff: 182 (124). Galway Cavendish: two advance polls were held, October 5 and November 1. The total of the two polls was 503 (approx. the same). Somerville: 195 (295).

FROM THE CHAMBER

By Bob Stinson

The budget

Haliburton's young people are about to receive the benefits of two individual projects that are getting underway this week and we congratulate the organizers of both for the initiative they have shown. Let us hope that it is not too long before we can observe the rewards of their efforts.

The first program to show immediate effects will be the Career-Week that is now underway at the High School. Billed as "Careers of the 80's - A program of Career Awareness" the schedule allows students to attend presentations by a number of businessmen from all types of working environments, as well as panel discussions covering such topics as College vs. University, Job Market Projections, and Hiring Priorities of large companies. The week ends with participating students and businessmen attending an informal banquet where more of their questions may be answered.

This comprehensive program was made possible through the participation of the Rotary, Kinsmen and Lions Clubs of our area along with Sir Sandford Fleming College, our Canada Manpower Outreach Office and the Chamber. Ken Rydmen, school guidance counsellor, and Art Ward did the super job of bringing it all together and we sincerely hope this will become an annual event for the students.

The other program that is now taking shape involves the formation of the "Haliburton County Community Industrial Training Committee". The government is encouraging the formation of such committees because it has come to recognize the overwhelming problem that is developing. While we are wrestling with record unemployment, we are faced with a huge shortage of skilled labour. This committee will attempt to deal with that problem in relation to our area.

The first step will be to undertake a survey within industries or businesses in the county to determine the scope, nature and severity of any imbalances between supply and demand for workers in skilled occupations. Once that is accomplished an attempt will be made to develop strategies to resolve the problems. There are a number of possibilities. The end result should provide our young people with more options and a clearer view of what they involve.

The committee is chaired by Kim Emmerson of Emmerson Lumber and we expect he would be glad to hear from anyone who wishes to provide some input to the deliberations.

One important factor of the recent Federal budget that has been completely overshadowed by the energy policies was the extension of the "Small Business Development Bond" program to the end of March, 1981. This legislation was introduced a year ago in the Conservative budget, but because that government was defeated it was never passed into legislation.

The original intention was to provide a year in which the program could operate and the deadline was set for the end of 1980. Small businesses and the banks were assured that the Liberal government would keep this item in their budget, but businessmen petitioned to have it extended a further year to allow time to use the plan to full advantage.

With the extension of three months it now makes the projects that already underway or in the final stages of planning feasible under the plan, but it is doubtful a completely new project could be put into the works in time.

A Small Business Development Bond allows an incorporated business to "borrow" money from their bank in the form of a bond. The interest then becomes a dividend on which the bank pays no taxes. Since banks pay tax at the rate of 50%, they can therefore reduce their interest by up to half to maintain the same return. The business on the other hand pays the interest or dividends with after tax dollars so therefore does not get the full benefit.

The Ministry of Industry and Tourism T.R.I.P. program can be applied against this program to provide a 5% interest subsidy which reduces after five years.

The S.B.D.B. is also only applicable for five years so that if the expansion plan that is proposed can be expected to be profitable enough to carry a higher interest rate after this initial period the plans can certainly be a major factor in getting a project underway. It is unfortunate they are allowing so little time.

That weather!

With a beautiful late fall week-end kicking off the deer season we are reminded that this has been the first week-end since August 2 that it did not rain on the week-end -- and then it rained Friday night just so we don't get off scott free. When we are asked if the energy prices are affecting business, we have to wonder which is affecting it the most -- that or the weather.

Don't forget

Many parts of our county unfortunately have little or no choices to make in this municipal election, but for those of you that do, may we remind you one more time -- "If You Don't Vote -- You Don't Count."

Snowdon candidates meeting

would result in a reduction of traffic and a lower standard of maintenance.

Fire brigade

One questioner asked the present members of council why the township was without a fire brigade and was forced to rely on services from surrounding municipalities. He claimed the money spent on a brigade would be saved in the cost of fire insurance.

Deputy Reeve John Francis noted that it took the Haliburton fire brigade 13 minutes to reach Gelert. He also suggested that there would be problems in any attempt to find enough volunteers to fight a fire. He said a study of the situation had been carried out some time ago but the results were not made public.

Candidate for the deputy reeve position, Ray Cox, commented that he had had to call for fire trucks recently but was confused as to which neighbouring community he should contact. He suggested that the ratepayers should be informed as to the proper numbers to call in case of a fire emergency.

The questioner suggested that people would be reluctant to move into the township because of the lack of local fire protection.

Francis said it would be unfair to tax the township's growing senior citizen population for a fire brigade. He pointed out the present service is being provided for the municipality at a cost of $1250 per year.

Other matters discussed during the evening include:

-the lack of federal and provincial grants being obtained for the township. "We have put in for some," Vick commented, "but none of them are free." He said the township was fortunate in that it did not have a large unemployment problem. He said there would be problems finding the men to do the jobs if the township obtained make-work grants.

-Francis and council hopeful Bert Smith outlined the progress which has taken place in the formation of a township business and community group. He noted the organization hopes to be active outside of the municipal political sphere but that it would be pursuing programs of benefit to the entire community.

Smith stated the group hopes to create a number of recreation areas in the township, and has applied for a grant to assist with the cutting of cross country ski trails.

-According to the clerk, market value assessment has been approved for the township. He said the new system of determining the amount of taxes each resident must pay will be in operation for 1981. He said 569 ratepayers in the township will note a decrease in their taxes under the new system while 774 will note an increase.

The candidates on hand for the meeting included incumbent Reeve Robert Vick and challenger Don Smedmor, incumbent Deputy Reeve John Francis and challenger Ray Cox, incumbent member of the township council Dwain Wruth and candidates Bryan Neville, Fred J. Simmons, and Bert Smith. Ralph Young, who was acclaimed to the position of trustee on the board of education was also on hand for the meeting.

Slush takes toll

Early winter snow played havoc with drivers in the latter part of October, according to a report released this week by Minden OPP.

The local police detachment reports that at least three mishaps were related to the accumulation of snow and slush on area highways.

A car driven by Edward N. Baker, 80, of Cardiff was one of those to slip off the road.

Mr. Baker was travelling west on Highway 503 west of Irondale when he lost control of the vehicle, it left the road and struck a rock cut in the south ditch.

Damage to the car was estimated at $1800.

Constable Jim Solway investigated.

Cindy Ablett, 21, of Wilberforce, was the driver of a 1980 model pick-up truck involved in a single vehicle collision October 27.

The driver was travelling north on Highway 121 in Dudley Township when she lost control of the vehicle in the slush and it rolled over into the east ditch. The driver was taken to the Haliburton Medical Centre for treatment of minor injuries. Damage to the truck was estimated at $6000.

Constable Jim Solway was in charge of the investigation.

The third accident on the same morning occurred on Highway 519 north of Haliburton.

Elaine Holland, 56, of Tory Hill was driving north when the 1980 model car skidded out of control and entered the west ditch. Police estimate the vehicle sustained $1500 damage.

Deer collision

A deer was killed and a car sustained $2000 damage following a collision on Highway 35 south of Dorset October 28.

Jon Derry, 64, of Dorset was the driver of the car as it travelled south on the highway.

The mishap was investigated by Constable Bob Pearson.

No vote in Dorset

There will be no election this year in the municipality of Sherborne, McClintock and Livingstone.

The no-vote situation was confirmed this week by the township clerk who confirmed that all positions had been filled by acclamation.

When the official period for nominations closed October 20, the position of reeve had been filled by acclamation and four individuals were seeking the three seats on council. One Council hopeful withdrew from that race and filed his papers for deputy reeve, taking the seat by acclamation and allowing the three remaining council candidates to also be declared elected by acclamation.

At that point no one stepped forward to contest the single seat on the Board of Education. However that post has also now been filled, again by acclamation. David Mac Donald will be the municipality's representative on the board.

With all elected positions in the municipality filled by acclamation, the residents of the area will not have to vote to select their members.

A continuing interest

We were surprised at a recent meeting to hear one member of the audience ask if the public was welcome to attend the meetings of local municipal council.

The question surprised us because we have always thought residents accepted as a basic tenet of our political system, the right to sit in on the deliberations of the individuals selected to manage the affairs of the community. This right is considered so important in fact, that it is specifically outlined in the Ontario Municipal Act:

"The meetings, except meetings of a committee including a committee of the whole, of every council and every local board as defined by the Municipal Affairs Act except boards and commissioners of police and school boards, shall be open to the public, and no person shall be excluded except for improper conduct." 190 (1).

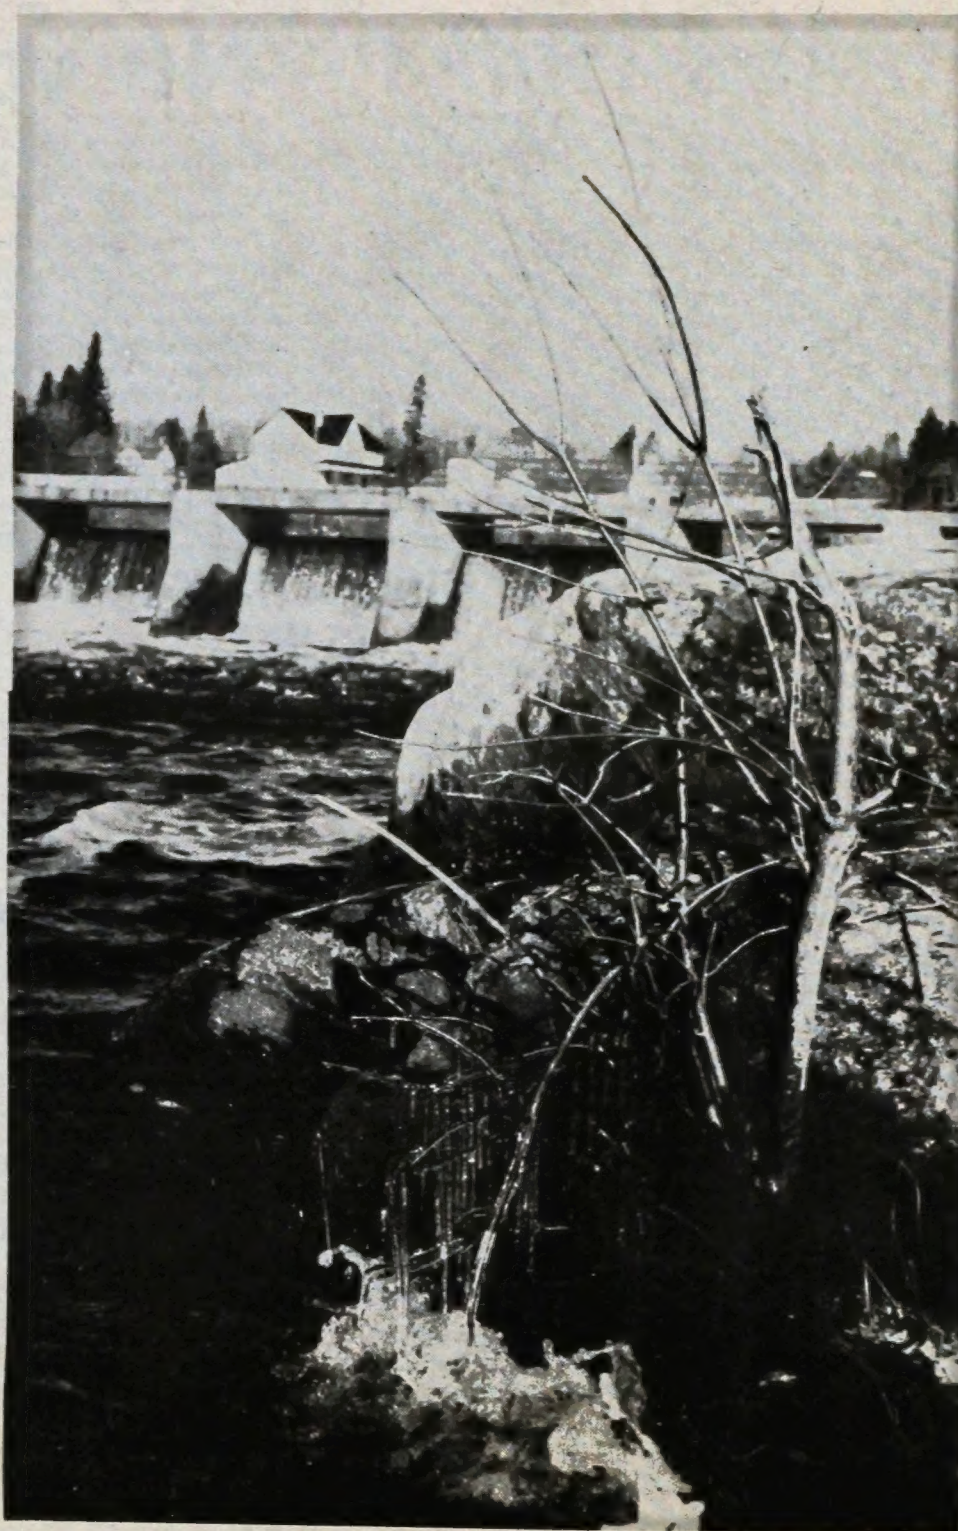

While the provisions of the Municipal Act allows for closed meetings for committee purposes, the act also states that votes taken as a result of such deliberations must be open and in the public.

No member of the public should ever feel he is intruding when attending a council meeting.

The members of the council are individuals to whom the community has entrusted the operation of the municipality. If you like, the councillors are the board of directors. The residents, then, are the shareholders, the people who provide the wherewithal (taxes) to keep the business running. As a shareholder, residents are entitled to know how their investment in the community is being handled and protected. Indeed, the residents have an obligation to ensure the council is always acting in the best interests of all.

The Anson, Hindon and Minden Township Council meets every second and fourth Wednesday of the month. The first meeting starts at 9 a.m., the second at 7:30 p.m. Times and dates for other municipalities are available by calling the township office.

Interest in municipal politics peaks every two years at election time. Residents should also be aware however that the best government is given to constituents who are well informed. Your vote is important next Monday, but equally important is your continued interest in the operation of your community in the next two years.

REPORT FROM QUEEN'S PARK

By John Eakins, M.P.P.

Hospital budgets are on the minds of many these days, and shortly I shall be reviewing the needs of Lindsay's Ross Memorial Hospital.

Although about eight in ten Ontario hospitals expect a deficit by the end of the fiscal year, hospital spokesmen have indicated that they are confident the Minister of Health will come up with most of the money. According to the President of the Ontario Hospital Association, an appeal of its approved budget ceiling, and the Ministry of Health will pay "legitimate costs of approved programs."

Only 11 of the 200 hospitals surveyed said their over-budget costs resulted from programs set up without Ministry approval. Hospital officials contend that a key factor in their budgets this year will be the outcome of negotiations with personnel.

Land banking - dream or nightmare?

There has been considerable controversy recently about the government's land banking. Questions are being asked about former Treasurer John White's actions and thought processes in the early 1970s when he decided to buy land near Lake Erie to accommodate future growth which has never taken place.

Mr. White is now retired from politics. However, he recently told a Legislative Committee which is investigating the controversial government land banking that the decision to buy 12,689 acres in South Cayuga at a cost of about $30 million came to him in a vision while he was driving home to London one night. He said he also urged the Cabinet to buy 10,000 acres near Prescott on Lake Ontario because it was his "dream" that a major industrial development would locate there. Most of it remains undeveloped.

The South Cayuga and Prescott parcels, together with another big block of land in Haldimand-Norfolk, cost $70 million. As Liberal Leader Stuart Smith said, "It's one thing for the former Treasurer to have had a dream or a vision in his limousine, but it is quite another to have been able to persuade the Premier of the Province that the dream was worth $30 million of public money."

Independent appraisers have said the government would be lucky to get half its $66.4 million back from the Haldimand-Norfolk land - that is the money which it has paid out in purchase price and carrying charges.

The controversy will continue, with the added complication of news that the land is being tested as a possible site for the disposal of liquid industrial waste.

The history of the project to build a library-cultural centre in Minden has been long, and at times most disheartening. Were it not for the determinations and convictions of the Committee as to its service to the community, the project would long since have been abandoned. During this period the Committee have raised over half the monies necessary to construct a building the size we felt was needed.

To gain Wintario funds we needed the support of the local council. This we received after approaching the council with a presentation as is the accepted manner for such transactions.

When a problem arose over our Wintario grant, Reeve Nesbitt accompanied the group to Toronto, along with John Eakins, M.P.P., to present a brief supporting our needs. We were successful in obtaining a grant of $25,000.

We also needed assurance from our local council, that any additional costs incurred, over the estimated expense, would be supported. Since that time our Committee has worked diligently and shall continue to raise more money if such a situation arises. We are grateful to all those persons who have given us financial support. We have tried to protect your interests in securing a building worthy of your trust.

We have met with one obstacle after another in the four years since we began. As we look back, each obstacle has only succeeded in changing our direction until a better facility has emerged. We feel at last that we will have a building which will be functional and pleasing and which can be used by all members of the community.

In any project of this nature decisions must be continually made. Not every decision will be popular with everyone, every time. The decisions made during the planning and construction of this centre have not come easily. What we have tried to do is to contribute a centre to the community which will serve the needs and interests of this community as well as our summer residents. If we succeed in this, then the hours of work, frustrations and feelings of despair will have been worth it.

We can only succeed if our fellow citizens, including our local council representatives, give us the necessary help and encouragement, not only financially, but morally as well.

Dr. Jameson for the Minden Library-Culture
Centre Committee

No posters on poles...please

Attaching election signs to Ontario Hydro poles is not only a safety hazard for climbing linemen but is also against the law.

It is not really the posters that cause the problem but the tacks, nails or staples used to attach them.

"As well as being costly and time consuming to remove, they can be dangerous to a lineman," says Ontario Hydro's Public Relations Officer, Ted Johnston. "If a lineman's climbing spur slips against one of these fasteners in the pole, he can fall and get hurt. Even if they don't fall, our people can cut themselves or have their clothing torn by protruding nails and staples."

"This is why we are appealing to candidates and their volunteers not to post election signs on Ontario Hydro poles. It is dangerous and, in fact, against the law (Power Corporation Act, Sec. 45)," Mr. Johnston added.

REMEMBRANCE DAY NOV 11

In one corner of the Mountbatten Room lounge at the Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 129, Haliburton, two mannequins wearing uniforms from the first world war stand. The mannequins are part of a collection of war memorabilia which has been placed on display at the Legion.

A recent visitor to the lounge, Carol Lidgold of Scarborough noticed the two uniformed figures, and in her mind, she brought the pair to life. The story she created is reprinted below.

They stood in the corner, two lonely, dust covered figures. She, wearing a uniform of navy, blue jacket too short for her long arms, and straight skirt. On her blonde hair is an almost shapeless navy hat. He stands proudly erect wearing the flat brim, round dome steel hat and khaki uniform of his country from the first world war. Below the knee, his pant legs are tight against his legs, wrapped untidily. Very thin legs stretch down below her skirt, making the awkward black shoes on her feet, look even heavier. On his feet are the sturdy looking boots that soldiers always wear. There is something strange about his arms.

One arm, brought to one's attention by the kit bag hanging over his shoulder, is long and thick, the jacket sleeve too short. The other arm is small, shaded a different colour. It looks as if he were put together in various pieces to represent many bodies.

Shyly she stands next to him, touching, looking at the ground, her face toward him. Erect and ramrod straight, he stands, on parade, yet sneaking a fond glance at her as he passes. There is a warm togetherness between them.

The corner is in a small basement lounge of a Royal Canadian Legion building. Directly in front of them is a linoleum covered square for dancing. On the carpeted edges around, are blue tub chairs and dark imitation woodgrain, circular tables. A glassed case holds memories and mementos of the past wars.

Now the room is filled, smoke circulating, people talking and laughing, their voices competing with the football game on the colour television. The two figures watch with hardly a glance their way from the people.

What do these figures think of the people enjoying the freedom others fought for and gave them? Do the people ever wonder about the two figures in the corner or give a passing thought to what they represent?

Silence and darkness fills the room. A soft sigh echoes and a weary figure sits down at one of the tables. Soon a second, shadowy figure joins the first. From the table, although there is no lamp, a glow lights the faces. It is the two forgotten figures from the corner.

Hands touching, they smile at one another, lost in dreams that never happened. A soft melody, so very familiar, drifts gently on the air around them. Heavy shoes and boots become light as they dance close together and very slowly, to the music.

For a moment, with the music still playing, the dancers pause in front of the glass case. Memory of those they knew, passes through their thoughts. With a sad sigh, they dance to the music, pushing thoughts away. This was their moment of happiness.

They had met in Halifax those many years ago. Both were waiting for a ship to carry them to the battle. She was a nurse. He was a private soldier. A week they spent together, a few hours each evening. How quickly love flamed between them. Too soon it was time to board ship.

Two days out, they discovered each other on the same ship. Stolen moments as they met in the starry night on a tossing sea. Unspoken love between them grew deeper, but they knew the commitment could not last. This was a time of war.

Another familiar tune drifted out gently, as the two figures danced on the square of linoleum. Then moving across the rug, they stood in the hallway, the walls framed with pictures and insignia.

Together they looked at the medals he had never received or had much use for. Regiment shoulder flashes marked time behind glass and he pointed one out. She knew it was the one he had worn. Long, brownish pictures stretched across another wall and they both stared at the young man that had been him.

She had come from another part of the country.

In a small space, almost hidden, was a water cooled machine gun. He had operated one and wondered how many of his bullets had found their mark in young men of the enemy.

Turning, as the music drew them back, they stared at the flag hanging in a place of honour above the doorway to the lounge. This red and white flag was not theirs. He had not fought under this banner. This flag could never be theirs.

Dancing again, a melancholy feeling stole over the two and they sat down at the table. Two glasses of wine waited and, clinking them in a toast, they sipped at the sweet nectar.

"Do you think they ever wonder who wore these uniforms?" she asked and he sadly shakes his head.

"We gave them freedom. Now they no longer need to remember us."

"How short our lives were," she sighed, "how much I missed!"

"I'm glad I could give them this future," he answered proudly. "I protected the future for them."

"If only they would smile at me," she sighed, "I could accept things as they are."

"At least we are together, forever," he said tenderly, taking her warm hands in his.

"Yes, thank God, we are together at last. We had so little time."

A thunderous crash shattered the quiet air. Heavy smoke and fire filled the room. No longer was there a table with two figures, nor was the lounge there. Into the past the two figures were pulled to relive it once more.

A cold, water-filled trench caught the light of the flare, outlining the mud-coated, shivering men. Useless guns fell from frozen fingers. A deadly shell found its mark and the men were no more. He among them.

Miles away, at the exact same time, dedicated nurses soothed the wounded and tried to ease their pains. A blast in the night and the improvised hospital splintered and disintegrated. Patients and medical personnel perished. She with them.

Silence took possession of the lounge returning it to normal. In a corner stands two dusty figures, their moment done. They don't know how or why their spirits entered these sawdust bodies. Many years they have been trapped inside waiting, for what they knew not. As another day passed and the evening came, a strange excitement possessed the two figures.

Another football game blared out from the television set. A man and a woman entered the empty lounge. Almost immediately the woman saw the two figures.

This woman noticed at once, the dusty shoes and far from perfect uniforms. For most of the evening, this woman looked at the two figures unable to concentrate on the football game. Then, as if there was a flash of communication from the figures to her, a gleam of an idea shone on her face.

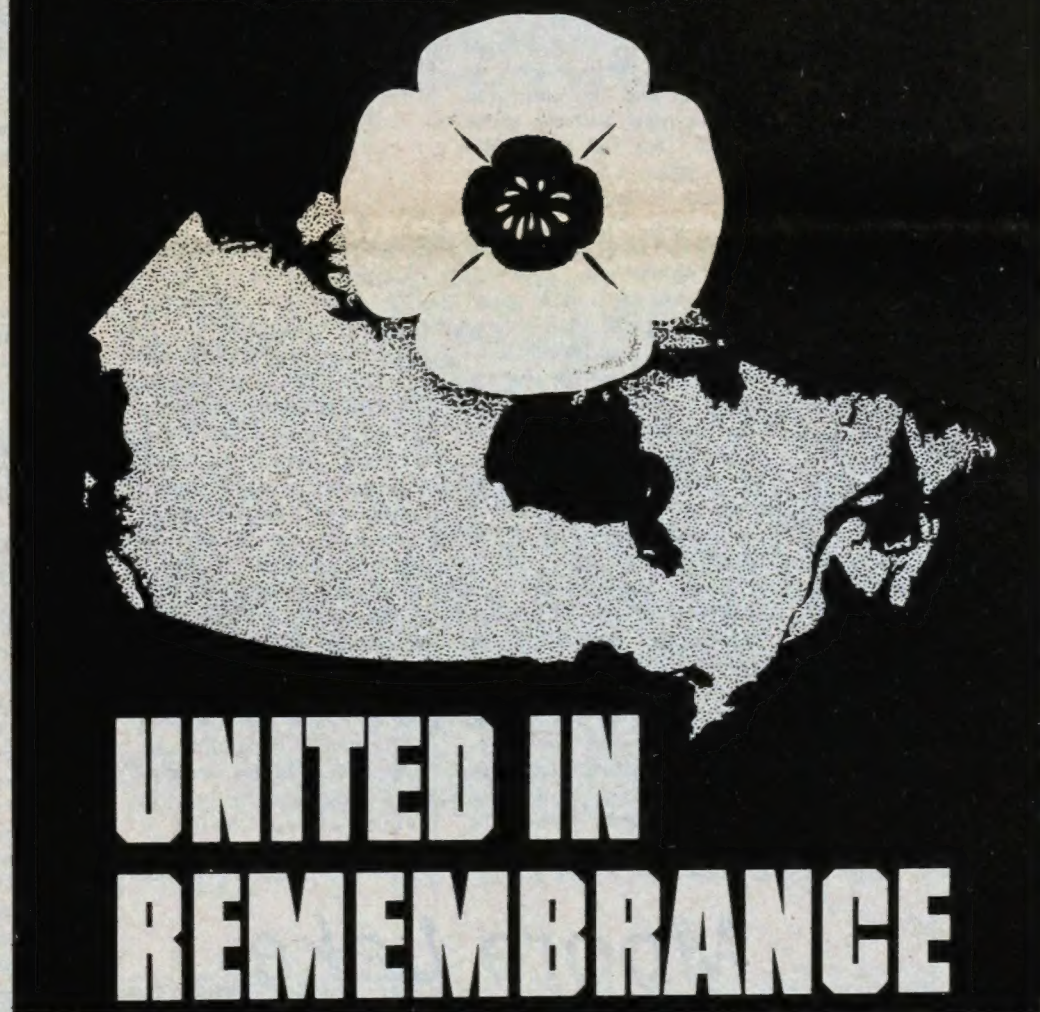

The figures watched as the woman searched her purse for scraps of paper. Then, as the words covered the scraps, they watched her asking the bartender for something to write on. Success, and more words poured forth.

A warm feeling crept over the two figures and unexpected, they were standing outside the sawdust bodies. Looking over the woman's shoulder, they read her words. She had freed them as they had secured the future for her.

Unseen, the two spirits drifted into the hallway. Pausing for a last look, they floated up the circular staircase that had been denied to them before. On its own, the door flew open and they stepped out into the crisp fall air. Freedom had come at last for them too.

The Royal Canadian Legion

The Soldier

*Ye who have loved, and mourn the brave.
Turn not with pensive gaze,
Upon the trophied fabric of some earthly shrine.
But in the silence of thy soul; Remember them!*

*No stately pageant, or massive idol wrought of stone, extols their fame.
If in the souls of those who loved them well,
The glowing embers of enduring memory burn,
Tho' Dead—they live again.*

*The swiftly passing years;
Times ever lengthening span, shall not divide.
If in that fabulous existence thou hast built,
upon the shatter'd ruins of the old.
Ye hold them dear; and in thy soul,
Remember them.*

This poem was submitted by Mrs. Nora Holliday-Rhodes, of Evesham, England who informs us the poem was written by Leonard Mayer who lived in the Potteries, England in memory of his 19 year old son, killed at Dunkirk.

The following Remembrance Day message was prepared by officials of Branch 129 of the Royal Canadian Legion, Haliburton.

On November 11 we will be holding our annual Remembrance Day services. For Canadians over fifty, it is easy to remember. The Wars were part of their lives, whether they were at home or part of the Armed Forces. The younger generations did not have this experience and we sincerely hope they never will. For them remembrance acknowledges a debt to the past but it is their task to look to a peaceful future.

Before Remembrance Day comes Poppy Week. The poppy is the symbol of Remembrance. It has always been known as the "flower of death" but it can also be regarded as the "flower of peace". The poppy therefore represents the sacrifice of the past and peace and hope for the future.

Every year many people give to the poppy campaign and I wonder how many realize how those donations are used. To enlighten you here is a short run down.

All monies collected are deposited in a trust fund and may not be used for the general expenses of the Legion. They may be used for poppy campaign expenses such as supplies, advertising etc., bursaries (not scholarships), the operation of a service bureau for Veterans and dependents, community medical supplies and research and comforts for hospitalized Veterans. There are other uses but space does not permit their listing. No one is paid to operate a poppy campaign, all help is voluntary.

Dominion Command of the Royal Canadian Legion has proclaimed November 4 to 11 as Poppy Week. Legion members will be canvassing business places for the sale of memorial wreaths. On November 8, a door to door canvas will take place for the sale of poppies.

Candidates prepare for November 10

The development of the recreational park in the Ingoldsby area is also considered to be an important development in the past two years.

Responding to criticism about the awarding of a contract for the new library, Nesbitt pointed out that the suggestion the log building would cost $20,000 more than the lowest tender offered for a block building was not fair. He said the block building would still require interior finishing, such as insulation and dry wall, material that he said would be unnecessary with the log building the council accepted. He also noted that municipal tenders always indicate the lowest or any tender will not necessarily be accepted as happened in this instance.

"I think Minden needs that building," Nesbitt commented. "It will be a drawing card for the community."

"We are doing all these things in the community and the tax bill has remained the same. You can't say we haven't been doing our job... there has been growth in Minden in the past two years," Nesbitt said.

Nesbitt concluded by noting, "If we can bring the BIA to Minden next year we'll make this community a really attractive place to live."

Lloyd Walker

This is not Lloyd Walker's first entry into municipal politics. He has served as a member of Lutterworth Township council for four years and as deputy reeve for eight years. He lost the race for that post in 1974.

A former owner of Walker's Texaco on the by-pass, this is the first time he has sought office in Anson, Hindon and Minden.

He explains his reasons for standing by stating the position of reeve should not be one taken by acclamation. "I thought there wasn't going to be anyone else in the race except the incumbent, and felt the voters deserved a choice," he commented.

Walker said he did not enter the campaign with any plan or strategy for the next two years. "I think it is important to run the municipality in a business-like fashion," he said in conclusion.

There are five candidates seeking the three vacant chairs at the council table.

Larry Cummins

This is the first attempt at municipal politics for Larry Cummins. He has lived in the area for the past ten years, operating a television repair service out of the Carnarvon area.

In approaching the position of councillor, Cummins believes there should be more contact between the members of council and the citizens of the community. "I think the councillors should actively seek out the opinions of the residents, consider what the man in the street is saying and take these factors into consideration before making decisions." He notes that this process may not be applicable in all situations but he feels there is a lack of communication between those at the council table and the public.

Asked if he was suggesting a public forum setting, Cummins said such gatherings can actually inhibit some people from coming forward with their problems. "People are often reluctant to speak out in public, whereas they are often willing to talk on a one-to-one basis," Cummins commented.

He suggested the township council should also make better use of the expertise of area residents. "By talking to people we can get ideas from others who, perhaps have greater experience," he commented.

Cummins is in favour of attracting light industry to the area either in co-operation with the county or the municipality on its own.

Cummins is a native of the Hall's Lake area who has spent 11 years in Toronto before returning to the Highlands.

Leroy Lichty

Attracting clean, light industry to the Minden area would be one of Leroy Lichty's priorities if elected to Anson, Hindon and Minden Township council.

The owner of the Brown Owl Restaurant on the by-pass is allowing his name to stand for municipal office for the first time.

He says that land must be set aside for industrial purposes and the municipal council must actively chase industry for the area. "We must make it attractive for industry to locate here," he commented. "We can't expect industry to come if we just sit here and wait."

He said he was in favour of the joint project underway near Donald as an effort to bring industry to the county, but he also feels the municipal councils should be active as well. He said industry based on the abundant wood supplies in the area would probably be attracted to the Highlands.

Lichty also favours the creation of a Business Improvement Area (BIA) for the core of Minden. "We must do something downtown," he commented. He cited the blight of posters on hydro poles as one problem the area has. He said centralized bulletin boards should be constructed for these posters. "The highway and downtown merchants have to get together for the promotion of the entire community," he commented. "We have to stop all this in-fighting."

Lichty predicted there would be an expansion of the number of businesses on the by-pass. He was dismayed that some people in the community want to "hold back progress."

Turning to another subject, Lichty said he felt the 100 foot frontage requirement for area lake subdivisions is too low. "I don't know what the minimum should be," he commented, "but 100 feet is just not enough."

Lichty also said the council during the past two years could be faulted for changing its minds too often. "The council should be prepared to stick by its decision," he said. "I realize it is impossible to please everyone when a decision is taken, but once the council has stated its mind, it should stick to it."

Commenting on the new library-cultural centre, the candidate said the log structure which the council has chosen appeals to him, but he does not agree with the method by which the structure was selected. "However, I do think the log building will be an asset to the community," the candidate concluded.

Lyle McKnight

Lyle McKnight is the only incumbent seeking re-election as a councillor in Anson, Hindon and Minden.

He feels the council will have many challenges in the next two years to deal with, not the least of which is the turning over to the municipality of responsibility for the Red Cross Hospital. He said the council will have to keep up to date on what is planned for the hospital and be able to assess the impact the change will have on the municipality.

Turning to roads, the candidate said the township should not be expanding the road network in the municipality. However, he was in favour of continuing a program of surfacing the roads with tar and chips. "We have done six miles in the last two years, and it has decreased the maintenance costs in those two areas," he commented. He said the program is expensive but the traditional oil and calcium treatment is also increasing in price.

"The township should be looking for industry to locate here," McKnight stated. He noted the county effort to find an industry to locate in the Donald area and the efforts of the Economic Development Commission. "They are looking at the problem in a county-wide context, which is alright," he stated, "but the local council has to go after industry in this area."

The candidate noted that some local industries have been allowed to wither when, with help and encouragement, they might have prospered. "It is alright to try and get new industry to locate here," McKnight said, "but let's not overlook the industry we have here now. Let's encourage them to expand."

He invited the public to offer ideas on programs or shows that could be held at the arena. "We are always open to new ideas to utilize the building better," he said. "We don't want the arena to become any greater financial burden on the community."

McKnight said there shouldn't be much more growth permitted on the by-pass or it would choke traffic flow. He suggested that several areas along the highway would make ideal locations for small industry, as long as only a single entrance was required onto the highway.

The candidate also said he was not fully in favour of having all subdivisions in the village or built-up areas. "There are some people who like to live in the country in this township, they will find suitable subdivisions in adjoining townships."

McKnight noted that The Times report of the all candidates meeting stated the water rates had not been raised since 1978. "The last increase in water rates prior to this year was in 1968," he pointed out.

With reference to the library the candidate said the council did not set the specifications for the new building. "The committee has worked hard to plan for a new library-cultural centre. If they want a log style building, I don't think the council should stand in their way." He noted the committee accepted the log design, following a presentation by the contractor to the township council.

McKnight also pointed out that the $20,000 difference in the lowest block tender and the log building did not take into consideration the fact the block building had to be insulated and finished on the inside.

Ed Pergolas

This is Ed Pergolas' first attempt to obtain a municipal office in Anson, Hindon and Minden, but he has been active in community affairs here and in the community of Agincourt.

In Minden Pergolas has been a president of the local Rotary Club and has been chairman of the Rotary Summer Carnival for the past five years. While living in Agincourt he served on a number of municipal committees, although he did not hold an elected office.

"I have no axe to grind in this election," Pergolas commented. "I am however interested in the financial health of the municipality. I don't think many people in the township are aware of the financial debt this municipality is carrying," he commented.

Pergolas said he has a background in government finances having worked with the federal Department of Finance following World War Two.

The candidate also commented that he would like to see a fairer distribution of taxes throughout the community. He suggested that some inequities in assessment still exist and he felt these should be corrected.

Pergolas is also interested in seeing the community become a better known place. "The village has improved a great deal over the past few years," he commented. "But I still think there is more to be done. We should try to make Minden as attractive as possible."

The candidate also suggested that a publicity campaign, to make people aware of Minden and what it has to offer would be of benefit to the community.

"Parking is still a problem in Minden," Pergolas stated. "Watch someone from out of town try to find a parking spot and you will realize the situation we have here." He suggested that better marking signs indicating where the off-street parking is located should be installed.

Moore Lake Assoc. meets

The annual meeting of the Moore's Lake Association took place at Forest Echo Lodge, Sunday October 12 at 10 a.m.

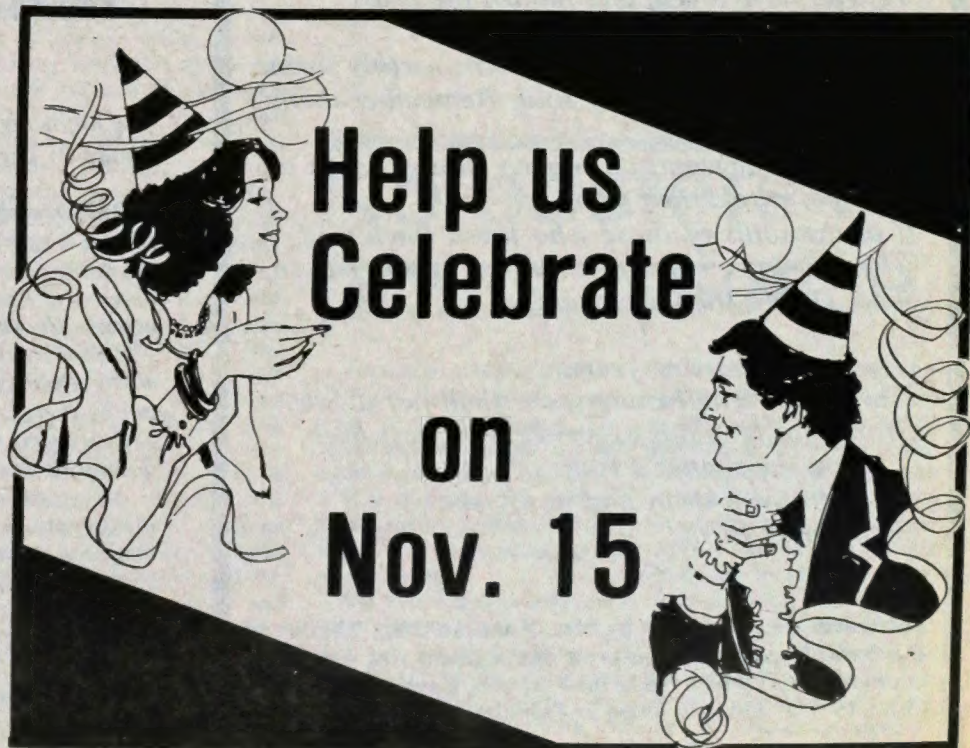

The president welcomed those in attendance and explained the late date having been caused to permit tabulation of a vote taken of all ratepayers concerning a ban on water skiing and/or a speed limit on the Gull River. The results revealed a greater majority in favour and the Lutterworth Township Council had been advised, and asked to take action through the Ministry of Natural Resources.

The present executive was confirmed for the next two years. Mr. James McIntosh was added to the board of directors.

The secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Helen Langdon, revealed a healthy financial position and concluded her remarks by recommending that a cheque be sent to the Red Cross Hospital.

Chris Wahlroth, the president, explained that the Gull River passes into Victoria County, with Laxton Township on the west bank, and nearly a half mile south the County Line continues on the north boundary. Reeve Jack Ridgway of Digby, Laxton and Longford promised co-operation of his Council, and indicated that he believed Somerville Township would agree.

There being no further business, the meeting was adjourned at 11:45 a.m.

Hallowe'en hijinks

Minden was awlirl with distorted faces and funny costumes last week as the community marked the annual Hallowe'en festival. Shoppers took to the aisles at Eastons Red & White to take advantage of some late night savings, while IGA staff surprised customers and management by showing up for work in Hallowe'en outfits. There were parties at schools, in homes and the community centre and area hotels. The photos on this page capture a small part of the Hallowe'en fun enjoyed by many in the community.

Puck Talk

Saturday marked the opening of the hockey season for teams of the Minden Minor Hockey Association.

While most teams took advantage of the November 1 start to practice, the pee wees and bantams faced season opening games without the benefit of a practice, other than the chance to take part in the hockey school last weekend.

Pee Wees

The Minden Pee Wees were shut-out by the team from Beaverton, losing 5-0. The visitors captured a single in the first period, three in the middle frame and a single in the third period for the victory.

With an opportunity to get some skating under them, we expect coach Neil Burk will get the team on the winning track.

Bantam

The same lack of practice hurt the bantam squad as they took a 7-1 defeat at the hands of Fenelon Falls.

The lone Minden goal, the first scored in the game, came off the stick of Jeff (Boomer) Stamp. He took the goalie on his glove side with a slapshot from just inside the blue line.

During the third period of play Scott Yake was unceremoniously pulled down by a Fenelon defender as he made a run for the net. The referee awarded the player a penalty shot but the Fenelon goalie stood his ground and turned aside the puck.

Coach Gene Newell and the players hope with a little bit of practice to turn those figures around the next time they meet Fenelon Falls.

Let me be myself

This poem was written by 11-year-old Donny Chabot, a handicapped student at Alex Muir School in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. Donny is the grandson of the late NHL goaltender Lorne Chabot and his words undoubtedly express the feelings of thousands of children.

Well, here it is another hockey season.

So I am writing you for just one reason.

Please don't scream or curse and yell.

Remember I'm not in the N.H.L.

I am only 11 years old

And can't be bought or traded or sold.

I just want to have fun and play the game

And am not looking for hockey fame

Please, don't make me feel I've committed a sin

Just because my team didn't win.

I don't want to be that great, you see

I'd rather play and just be me

And so in closing, I'd like to give you one tip -

Remember, the name of the game is SPORTSMANSHIP

WITH TODAY'S VACCINE THERE'S JUST NO EXCUSE FOR GETTING MEASLES

Recently, there's been a serious increase in the number of cases of measles in Ontario. At a time when modern vaccines are so readily available, it simply doesn't make sense for you or your family to contract such diseases. Keep in mind that measles can lead to serious complications such as pneumonia or encephalitis, which is inflammation of the brain.

Women of a childbearing age should also be sure they are immunized against German measles - a disease that can cause serious birth defects.

Of course, you want the peace of mind all year round of knowing you and your family are protected against disease. But what better time to take some positive action than during November, Immunization Awareness Month, by making sure you're immunized.

While you're at it, ask your doctor or local health unit for your copy of the new Ontario immunization record card.

Let's keep Ontario healthy

ELECTION DAY NOV. 10

by Ron Reid of the Federation of Ontario Naturalists

A soils map of the area north and west of Lake Nipigon, north of Thunder Bay, shows a field of green, representing shallow soils with rocky knobs. But one area north of the C.P.R. tracks stands out as a blob of dark brown, where soils are essentially non-existent, and large areas of rock are covered with scattered trees. This blob is the core of a proposed wilderness park, known to conservationists as the Ogoki-Albany. It is also an area licensed to Great Lakes Paper who want to construct a system of logging roads through its heart, to begin clear-cutting the stunted jack pine and spruce as soon as possible.

In a world of rational planning, the choice between these conflicting demands would seem obvious. Ogoki-Albany is eminently suited as a wilderness park - it is still wild and beautiful, with foaming rivers and dozens of picturesque lakes; it is ecologically significant, with a remnant herd of woodland caribou and fine representation of boreal forest; and it meets the Government's criteria to fill the missing gap for a wilderness park in this part of Ontario. Conversely, it is not well-suited to forestry - shallow soils and harsh climate make tree growth slow and regeneration difficult, and scattered trees and long hauling distances to the mills of Thunder Bay make the economics of forest management dubious. This is not the sort of area where the forest can be farmed, taking successive crops in coming generations. In Ogoki-Albany, we are instead looking at mining the forest, stripping the resource once, then leaving the area for a very long time to recover.

Unfortunately, planning decisions are seldom made solely on such a rational basis. With the help of a 50% incentive for road-building from the federal government, Great Lakes Paper is pushing for immediate approval to open up the area. While the final decision will officially be made through the strategic land use planning process of the Ministry of Natural Resources, Ministry staff are split on the issue, and both conservationists and loggers are already pressing their case before the Minister and senior staff.

Eakins endorses convention centre

Victoria-Haliburton MPP John Eakins has welcomed the decision of the three levels of government to proceed with the construction of a major convention centre for Metro Toronto. "For years, my Leader and I, have been raising this issue in the Provincial Legislature in an attempt to convince the government of the benefits of a facility which would attract large numbers of tourists to our province," he commented recently.

"In 1977, the Liberal party's task force on tourism was presented with a list of 71 major associations which could not hold their conventions in Toronto due to the lack of facilities. At the same time, we were informed of other large organizations which had held their conventions here, but would not be returning because the space available had been inadequate or unsuitable.

"The Liberal Task Force Report recommended that the three levels of government and the private sector finalize discussions on the convention centre without delay so that construction could begin.

They also called for the facility to be used as a central point for the "marketing" of Ontario and its many tourist attractions. This could be accomplished by the establishment of an information, promotion and distribution centre in the facility to provide convention delegates with an opportunity to discover the whole of Ontario as a vacation paradise and, perhaps, even to make reservations at various resorts.

"Not only would such a centre bring in immediate revenue, it would also counteract the seasonal nature of our tourism trade, which is one of its greatest handicaps. Conventions generally take place in the fall or the spring since people holiday in the summer. By attracting tourists in the spring and fall the new centre would, in effect, lengthen our tourist season.

"It has been estimated that about 10% of the membership in large American associations is Canadian. Thus, there is considerable incentive for many associations to choose Toronto as a convention site. Furthermore, Toronto can attract conventions because of its reputation as a safe city for families.

"The potential for selling the rest of the province and its tourism destinations through this Convention Centre is enormous. With a provincial tourism deficit in the range of half a billion dollars, we must get on with the job at once so that not only Metro Toronto, but all the province can share in the benefits which such a major convention centre can bring to Ontario."

GUESS WHO'S

HAVING A BIRTHDAY PARTY!!

Letters from Lee

Lee Potter is a local high school student who is spending a year in Mexico as part of the Rotary International student exchange program. Her participation is sponsored by the Minden Club. Lee has agreed to share her experiences with our readers through the letters she sends home to her family. The following are excerpts from a letter sent in September.

School is much different here. The classes start at 8 a.m. and are an hour long. You can come and go from the school property as you wish. I'm finished school each day at 6 p.m., but I have lots of spares during the day. On some days I can get a ride to school with my fellow classmates. They drive like maniacs here, but I am getting used to it and enjoy the ride to and from school. Most of the roads don't have lines down the centre and everyone drives every which way. As my brother says, you don't do what the sign says, with regard to one way streets, etc., you do what the other cars say.

On Friday and Saturday nights I go to fiestas. They are much different from what I am used to. Everyone gets dressed up in suits and dresses. These are invitation only parties. The guys need invitations to get in but girls don't. My brother makes me sit with the rest of the girls... we drink Coke, eat potato chips and wait to be asked to dance. Girls do not ask guys to dance. And, when you dance, you just don't dance one song, you are expected to dance with the person for five or six songs.

The fiestas are usually held outside in a garden. The girl who is having the party hires a disc jockey. Of course, everyone's back yard is already finished with a tiled dance floor. Rarely do I know the person who is hosting the party and often don't get an opportunity to meet her. At some parties over 100 people are there.

My sister Laura doesn't know how I can stand that sort of "Techquito Party". She always went to the public schools since she liked them better, not like her brothers who all liked private schools. But I think the fiestas are fantastic and have a great time at them.

On Sunday afternoons at about 7 p.m. Laura and I go to mass at the large 400 year old cathedral in Saltillo. We walk since it is only a few blocks away. We live right on one of the main streets and most everything is conveniently within walking distance.

The cathedral is Saltillo's major tourist attraction. After church I go with my amigos to the Alameda. It is a park near where I live. It seems that the whole city goes there on Sunday nights. Everyone sits around in the park, there is a large traffic jam...it's lots of fun.

Saltillo is a beautiful city. It is right in the mountains. In area it is about the size of Peterborough, but the population is much larger. It never gets too hot here, about the same as summers in Haliburton County, but in the winter it does cool down some and you have to put on a sweater. It also rains and gets very foggy. Right now, though, the weather is great. I don't have a sun tan yet because I've been too busy to spend time lying around in the sun...

I went to my first Rotary meeting last week. It was quite an experience. There were more people sitting at the head table than in the rest of the group. A five course meal was served. The exchange students gave their impressions of Saltillo and our photos appeared in the local paper...

It is hard to tell you how much I love it here! I am having the time of my life. I have so many new friends, I can't remember their names, and I have been invited to so many homes for dinner, I don't know if I'll ever get to all of them.

At school everyone is asking me if I need help with my homework. I never knew people could be so friendly to a stranger. Right now, looking ahead, a year just doesn't seem like enough time to spend here. I love Mexico and I'm going to make the best of my time here...

Adios.

Something new for the garden

For those people with a green thumb, the season is all but over. However, it won't be long until they start planning the gardens for the next season.

For those who may want to try something different in next year's vegetable patch, two new varieties of tomato cultivars have been developed during the past three years and should be ready for the market by next spring. The following report from the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food provides more details.

When you bite into a juicy tomato you probably never wonder about its origin or family history. However, breeding new types of tomatoes is an essential part of Ontario's tomato industry.

Dr. Ernie Kerr, horticultural scientist at the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food Horticultural Experiment Station, near Simcoe, has developed several tomato cultivars during the past 30 years. The latest two — Harvestvee and Bonnyvee — were named earlier this year.

Before these new cultivars were named, they were tested at the Experiment Station and in grower and processor trials for three years. Trials were conducted in various locations across the province.

"Harvestvee is a late mid-season cultivar that could be used in ketchup, juice and for the fresh market," says Dr. Kerr. "It can be used for the whole-pack industry, but will probably have to be cored. Harvestvee showed promise at Ridgetown, Simcoe and Smithfield."

Harvestvee received the top rating in 1978, and close to the top in 1979, in the Northern Tomato Exchange Program for hand-pick processing cultivars. These trials are evaluated by tomato breeders at 10 sites located in Ohio, Indiana, Missouri, Maryland, New York, North Carolina, and Ontario.

In the Ontario Hand-Pick Processing Trials, Harvestvee had the highest overall rating, the largest fruit (160 grams 5.7 ounces), the second highest yield (63.6 tonnes per hectare or 28.4 tons per acre), and the best quality juice.

"Canners and commercial fresh market growers are starting to show interest in Harvestvee," says Dr. Kerr. "This cultivar is large in size, crack resistant, and has excellent color and holding ability. It is also resistant to fusarium I and verticillium wilts and is highly tolerant to the herbicide metribuzin, which is used for weed control."

Bonnyvee is a medium-sized (309 g or 4 oz), very smooth, firm cultivar that features a tiny core and excellent flavor, says Dr. Kerr. This hand-pick type, maturing later than Harvestvee, shows promise for fresh and processing markets."

Bonnyvee has received favorable reports from processors in the Haldimand-Norfolk Region, Prince Edward, Essex and Kent Counties. One company has used the cultivar in their whole-pack operation.

Commercial seed production is under way.

"Bonnyvee has the best combination of firmness and flavor of any cultivar I have tested," says Dr. Kerr. "Most firm-fruited types have poor flavor."

Similar to Harvestvee, this new cultivar features a determinate (limited) growth habit, uniform ripening, resistance to fusarium wilt and tolerance for metribuzin. However, it lacks resistance to verticillium wilt. Dr. Kerr says this cultivar may interest home gardeners as a late-season tomato because its last fruits can be harvested just before frost and allowed to ripen indoors.

Local power rates still under study

Energy Minister Robert Welch has reconfirmed the Government's commitment to reducing the differential between the retail rate for electricity paid by rural residents and that paid by urban residents.

"There has been absolutely no change in the commitment made by Premier Davis in the Legislature last April to reduce the rural/urban electricity retail rate differential", the Minister said.

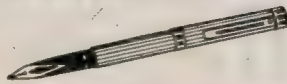

"I have asked Ontario Hydro to report to me on ways this objective can be achieved, and expect to receive that report in the very near future."

The Minister also stated that the recent announcement by Ontario Hydro that its wholesale or bulk power rates would increase in 1981 was reviewed in detail by the Ontario Energy Board this summer and found to be reasonable.

"The recently announced wholesale rate increase for 1981 does not affect the government's determination and commitment to reduce the rural/urban retail rate differential", the Minister said.

STANHOPE NOTES

A.F. Stevenson

Stanhope voters will make their choices for the 1981-82 township council, November 10 and the choice should be given serious consideration.

Matters such as equalized assessment, lakeshore allowances, road closures plus improvements to some township facilities call for capable and serious consideration. The developing oil supply situation could create problems in operating costs for this municipality in the area of road maintenance, heating, school busing and county levies etc. As these costs rise, the impact on the taxpayer is going to be more severe and municipal councils are going to need to find ways to minimize the burden on the property owners. The various subsidy sources may be unable to keep pace with the demands which ensue from rising costs resulting from energy problems.

Ontario's library system appears to be in for an onslaught of searching inquiry from the Ministry of Culture and Recreation and also the Ministry of Intergovernmental Affairs. At least this is the conclusion one could make after reading a copy of a speech by Honourable Reuben Baetz, Minister of Culture and Recreation, and a study of a paper prepared by the municipal budgets and accounts branch of the Ministry of Intergovernmental Affairs. Much information is being sought from the municipalities throughout Ontario to be provided in October or November, much of it quite burdensome to research and prepare, and no doubt when it finds a repository in the upper levels of government it will be given months of study culminating in a program to be implemented almost overnight.

According to the statement of Mr. Baetz final implementation of whatever program is arrived at would be set for December 1982. Users of regional libraries such as in Haliburton County would be well advised to seek assurance that the service that has been enjoyed as part of the Lake Ontario Regional Library System will not be placed in jeopardy through any realignments of the Regional Library System.

Handicapped people will find an improvement to the entrance to the Township office through the creation of an entrance for the use of handicapped people. The small area is meant only for the handicapped and should not be used as a parking

The turn-out of interested citizens attending the candidates night said a few things about the people of Stanhope, and to us it was all good. The number of people in the audience, the quality of their questions plus the fact that it was a very disagreeable night for many people to venture out, added to the fact that there was an interesting hockey game convinced us that Stanhope is alive, concerned, vibrant and anxious that all Stanhope people find satisfaction in being part of Stanhope Township.

Mary's roots run deep in Highlands soil

by Belinda Brown

Mrs. Mary Walker turned 84 earlier this month, but her age has not been a hindrance to the varied handicrafts she pursues. She still finds pleasure in hooking rugs, embroidery, knitting and crocheting.

Mary, a resident of Stanhope Township, was born in Muthill, Perthshire, Scotland in 1896. She came to Canada in 1919 at the age of 23 and recalls spending ten rough and storm tossed days aboard the ship Casandra before reaching Canada.

A brother, who had already moved to Canada and who was working in Toronto as a sculptor, helped pay her passage over and assisted her in settling in.

By chance Mary joined a friend on a summer vacation in 1921 that brought them to the Haliburton Highlands. The train, Mary recalls, travelled as far as Gelert where they were met by friends with a wagon and a team of horses. Over rough roads they travelled until they reached the Walker homestead.

It was love at first sight when Mary met Howard Walker at the farm. Something just seemed to 'click' and before the vacation was over plans were made for a wedding in December. The couple married December 14 of that year. It would be a long time before Mary would see Toronto again.

Mary and Howard raised ten children all who drew their first breath in the country farm house. Mary had complete confidence in her family doctor, trusting him as a close friend. On each occasion, no matter what the weather, the doctor came to the home when another child was due.

It wasn't an easy life on the farm. There was always much to be done and seemingly, too little time to get it done in. The Walkers raised their own food. Through the years Mary has twisted the seal on thousands of jars of fruit, jam, meat and fish.

The Walker homestead is situated on the edge of Kushog Lake. The lake was an important source of food for the growing family, Mary recalls. In each season it yielded a different species of fish. Kushog Lake also provided a focus for recreation for the family as well. In the winter, with its frozen surface, crossing the ice shaved miles off the horse and cutter trip to Minden.

Her husband has passed away now, but Mary is kept busy with family members dropping by with grandchildren and great-grandchildren to entertain. She still enjoys "laying on a feed" for the family.

When family or friends gather at the house, Mary will always find an excuse to bring out the cards and get a game of euchre underway. She likes the game and plays a mean hand.

Mary has always worked hard and endured many hardships. The adversity has strengthened her bond with the land and her close friends. Despite the suggestions of friends and relatives, she remains on the homestead. "My heart and soul is here", she explains. Mary looks for the positive aspects of each day as they pass and her crafts have helped to see her through.

Hyland Crest took on an eerie look last week. Hallowe'en arrived and it was obvious as there were witches, scarecrows and black cats.

The week's activities began with a good turnout to fun and fitness. We exercised our bodies to the tune of some lively fiddle music. Later in the day the ladies went to the craft-room to work on items in preparation for the Christmas Bazaar.

Everyone is welcome to attend our annual bazaar on November 19. There will not be a charge at the door, but if you wish to stay for tea and goodies there will be a charge of $1.00. There will be tickets on sale for a lovely hand-made quilt and there were be a display of hand-made gift items for Christmas.

Monday evening, we saw two very interesting films. "The Royal" a film about the Royal Winter Fair, and the second show, about pollution, "The River Must Live".

Tuesday morning, Rev. Everett Wicks of the Minden Gospel Church held a service in the chapel. We were pleased to have our newest resident, Mrs. Frances Krick accompany us on the organ while we sang some gospel hymns.

Several residents enjoyed a game of Bingo later in the afternoon. My thanks to the house-keeping and nursing staff, who called the numbers in my absence.

In the evening, again the residents gathered in the lounge to listen to Mr. Fred Ballard play the organ. It is always a pleasure to welcome Mr. Ballard to our home to entertain us.

Wednesday evening, the students from Haliburton High School and their instructor Mr. Bob Penfold were here to organize games night. Many people enjoyed euchre, crokinole and poker.

Thursday afternoon the Catholic ladies of Haliburton brought a delicious lunch for the Thursday tea party. It was a special birthday tea. Sarah Simmons, Berta Dawson, Bob Krick, Tom Harrison, Finnie Jenkins, and Ethel MacDonald were the special guests of honour who celebrated their birthdays during the month of October.

The ladies presented them with a beautifully decorated cake and everyone joined together to sing Happy Birthday.

Friday we had a strange creature visit our fun and fitness session. I'm not sure what it was, but it resembled King Kong. I've since heard rumors that the creature came up from the laundry.

Also at lunchtime, a very funny lady appeared in the dining room, strangely enough no one has seen her since.

At Sing Song, a rather odd gentleman sat in to listen as Grace Coburn led us in the singing of gospel hymns. We enjoyed having Frances Krick accompany us on the piano.

Needless to say it was quite a day.

Hallowe'en night, several other little strange looking characters visited our home for trick or treat.

Some of our residents even got in on the action by dressing in costumes to greet the children. Everyone had a good time and it was a great way to end the week of activities at Hyland Crest.

A goodly crowd was present at the Candidate's Night October 28th at the Recreation Centre with Jim Garbutt presiding. All the electoral spoke for five minutes and some would have taken longer. Jim then asked for questions from the floor and these were answered if there was a solution to them. The new candidates, of course, had no chance to air their views on questions. It is a good idea to have these gatherings and those present hope to have several more each year so councillors may tell what business is being done.

The L.O.B.A. had a very successful Card Party at the home of the Morgan Trumbulls on October 27th. Winners were for cribbage Joyce Hewitt, for euchre, Judy Trumbull, Gala Stamp, Harry J. Cowen, Stuart Harrison and lone hands Verna MacDonald. A delicious lunch was served by the ladies and all enjoyed a social half hour and during this a draw was made on pillowcases donated by Edna Trumbull with winner being Gala Stamp.

The Haliburton County Home Services arranged a Bus Trip to Toronto and Oshawa on October 28th leaving Haliburton at 8:15 and Minden at 8:45. Among the sixty people were included a large crowd from Minden, and our representative was Mrs. Marie Wallace. The first stop was at the Parliament Buildings where we were conducted on a tour of many meeting and committee rooms. After this we were guests of local MPP John Eakins who hosted a luncheon for the group. Later in the afternoon we attended question and answer period and had the pleasure of hearing our representative John Eakins talking on his own question. Weather was perfect and everyone seemed to enjoy their day.

Winners of Wintario Toques last weekend were at Mikes - Pat Cooper, at Brown Owl - Cliff Dodd, at Stedmans - Bruna Foran, at Mae's - E. Bennett and at Drugstore - Helen Cox.

There are several new arrivals - a baby girl for Marlene and Ronnie Robinson, and a baby boy for Nancy and Glen Hodgkinson (Anderson). Congratulations to these happy parents.

Weekend guests with his mother Beulah Hewitt and other relatives were the Moyer Hewitts of Brampton.

Gordon and Judy Albert (Francis) of Ottawa were at the Gelert Centre on Saturday evening where they received many useful wedding gifts and good wishes from everyone who was there.

Gala and Bud Stamp were away on a short holiday last week in Central Ontario.

Mary Minto and Karen Snell left on the weekend for the holiday trip - the latter won at the Minden Furniture Shop and this was to the Barbados.

Weekend guests with Mrs. Arnold Coulter were the Ray Rivers family of Downsview.

Winners at the weekly Mini Card Party at St. Paul's Parish Hall last Thursday afternoon were for euchre lone hands Ada Turrall and others Pearl Cowen and Della Griffin, for cribbage Luther Wilson (perfect score) and Ethel Leigh.

Recent guests with the Earl Birds have been Mike Bird of Peterborough and Laura Bird of Toronto.

Just a suggestion, perhaps you need a gift for someone who "has everything". Maybe they might like a subscription to the local paper. We hear that out-of-town deliveries are usually prompt now mail is going through, even to the Sunny South.

We notice that people are still spending their quarters for the Wall Hanging at Mae's. A stitch is not expensive, add yours and see how soon the article gets filled in and proceeds are for the new Library.

Only coming event is that the Thrift Shop will be open on Friday from 2-4:30 upstairs at the Parish Hall, lots of good items are there which you might find useful. Miss Nora's is closed until 11th as Sheila Austin and Norah Hogg are away on a trip to Puerto Plata, Dominican Republic.

A horse can't pull while kicking This fact I merely mention. And he can't kick while pulling, Which is my chief contention.

Let's imitate the good old horse And lead a life that's fitting. Just pull an honest load, and then There'll be no time for kicking.

Didn't hear about much damage Hallowe'en Night, guess there was too much going on, but crowds of youngsters were around. Nice weekend, many hunters here for their yearly holiday, hope they are successful. Cheerio until next time.

Hi! Well it was regular Hallowe'en weather, cold, windy with some rain and some snow, but I guess we can't complain the snow didn't stay.

Rick and Pam Dunsford of Fenelon Falls, just came back from Florida so they dropped in to see Annie and Frank Dunsford to tell them all about their trip.

Clare Wright from Mississauga dropped in to see some friends on his way up to Dorset.

Jim and Joanne Oatman and their two children, Joshua and Crystal, from Shelburne, were up over the weekend visiting in the area.

There didn't seem to be too much damage done on Hallowe'en Night. A few windows being soaped isn't too bad compared to the damages done in other places.

There was a good turn out at the Minor Hockey Dance held in the Arena. Good time was had by all.

Mr. and Mrs. Nuetzel were up to their cottage on the weekend.

Just a little reminder that the Regular Polling Day is Monday, November 10th from 11:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m.

Hint of the Week
Take the "pane" out of washing your windows. Add 1/2 cup ammonia, 1/2 cup vinegar and 2 tablespoons of cornstarch to a bucket of warm water for a perfect window washing solution. After windows have dried, rub a clean blackboard eraser over them for a really fine shine.

Kids Korner
I hope you kids had fun on Hallowe'en, but don't get sick by eating too much candy all at one time.

The Goat
Here, little goat, Here is food for you-- Sweet green grass From the top of the hill, Blossoms From the plum tree, too, And rose petals Sparkling with morning dew--

These are the things I have brought you.
What keys can't open doors?

Piano Keys
What has a head but no hair?

A pin
What has an eye but no head?

A needle
Here are a couple of riddles: What is it, That falls down a cliff and doesn't break? Falls in the water and doesn't sink? Goes in the fire and doesn't burn?

A sunbeam
A house full of grey wool, And you cannot get a fistful. Smoke

Joy is not in things; it is in us.

Bye for now. Take it easy. God bless till next time.
